

UNLV Geosciences Voluntary Respirator Program

You are encouraged to wear a dust mask if you are working in the crushing room while the equipment is in use. You may also choose to wear a respirator. If you would like to wear a respirator, the lab has them available but you must participate in the Voluntary Respirator program. This is to ensure that you are physically fit enough to endure the strain on your body caused by wearing the respirator.

Whether or not you choose to use a respirator, remember that under no circumstances should you use the rock crushing and pulverizing equipment to process rocks containing asbestos, including asbestiform amphiboles and chrysotile or rocks containing minerals or ores of toxic elements like mercury, arsenic, or uranium. The air handling system is not sufficient to protect you (not to mention physical plant staff that clean out the air handler) from the dangers posed by these materials.

In order to take part in the Voluntary Respirator program, you need to read the following regulatory material, fill out the attached questionnaire and get it certified. You should be aware that respirator use is governed by the following OSHA regulations:

1910.134(c)(2)

Where respirator use is not required:

1910.134(c)(2)(i)

An employer may provide respirators at the request of employees or permit employees to use their own respirators, if the employer determines that such respirator use will not in itself create a hazard. If the employer determines that any voluntary respirator use is permissible, the employer shall provide the respirator users with the information contained in Appendix D to this section ("Information for Employees Using Respirators When Not Required Under the Standard"); and

1910.134(c)(2)(ii)

In addition, the employer must establish and implement those elements of a written respiratory protection program necessary to ensure that any employee using a respirator voluntarily is medically able to use that respirator, and that the respirator is cleaned, stored, and maintained so that its use does not present a health hazard to the user. Exception: Employers are not required to include in a written respiratory protection program those employees whose only use of respirators involves the voluntary use of filtering facepieces (dust masks).

Please read Appendix D:

Appendix D to Sec. 1910.134 (Mandatory) Information for Employees Using Respirators When Not Required Under the Standard

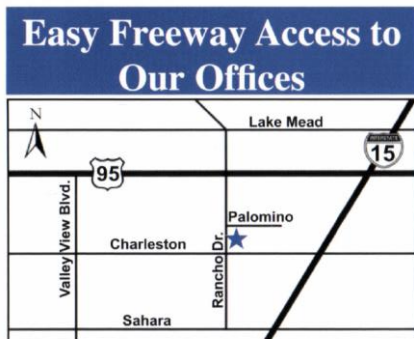

Respirators are an effective method of protection against designated hazards when properly selected and worn. Respirator use is encouraged, even when exposures are below the exposure limit, to provide an additional level of comfort and protection for workers. However, if a respirator is used improperly or not kept clean, the respirator itself can become a hazard to the worker. Sometimes, workers may wear respirators to avoid exposures to hazards, even if the amount of hazardous substance does not exceed the limits set by OSHA standards. If your employer provides respirators for your voluntary use, or if you provide your own respirator, you need to take certain precautions to be sure that the respirator itself does not present a hazard.

You should do the following:

1. Read and heed all instructions provided by the manufacturer on use, maintenance, cleaning and care, and warnings regarding the respirators limitations.
2. Choose respirators certified for use to protect against the contaminant of concern. NIOSH, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, certifies respirators. A label or statement of certification should appear on the respirator or respirator packaging. It will tell you what the respirator is designed for and how much it will protect you.
3. Do not wear your respirator into atmospheres containing contaminants for which your respirator is not designed to protect against. For example, a respirator designed to filter dust particles will not protect you against gases, vapors, or very small solid particles of fumes or smoke.
4. Keep track of your respirator so that you do not mistakenly use someone else's respirator. [63 FR 1152, Jan. 8, 1998; 63 FR 20098, April 23, 1998]

Fill out the attached questionnaire and arrange to send it to the Center for Occupational Health and Wellness for evaluation. When you have been certified as fit to wear a respirator, we will assist you in identifying a proper model and arrange for a place for you to store it in the rock prep lab.
